Insights from Fidelity

"Recently, we've been hearing more about "ghost networks," which occur when a health plan provider directory lists a provider as in-network, but that provider is not actually in the plan's network or is unavailable to provide care. Ghost networks are concerning as the No Surprises Act requires group health plans to establish a process to maintain accurate provider directories. Plan sponsors face challenges ensuring accurate information and adequate network standards; gaps can leave participants frustrated and at risk of surprise billing. Proactively mitigating ghost networks is an important compliance practice for group health plan sponsors."
